

Building Your Personal Brand

Making your value visible, without betraying yourself

4 psychology approaches · tips & advice — by EvaTalk

CONTENTS

Building Your Personal Brand

1. Before you begin
2. The 4 approaches
3. Psychodynamic lens
4. CBT lens
5. Humanistic lens
6. Systemic lens
7. Tips & advice
8. Your workbook
9. Your 4-week plan

BEFORE YOU BEGIN

Making your value visible, without betraying yourself

At equal skill, people first notice those they know. Personal branding isn't overselling yourself: it's making your value visible and coherent, so the right opportunities come to you.

This guide helps you move past what holds you back from showing up, define an image aligned with you, and build your visibility.

Your intention

How would you like to be seen professionally (and the gap with today): _____

The 4 approaches

This guide works your topic through 4 complementary psychology lenses. Read, do the exercises, fill the workbook — at your own pace.

Psychodynamic — understand the root.

CBT — ease the negative thoughts.

Humanistic — reconcile with yourself.

Systemic — act on your environment.

What holds you back from showing up

'Putting yourself forward = arrogant', fear of judgment, impostor feelings, an upbringing toward discretion: often, what makes you invisible comes from there.

Spotting it means no longer confusing visibility with arrogance.

Example

Raised to 'not boast', Aïcha let others take credit for her work. Understanding the brake helped her show up.

What holds me back

What stops you from making your work visible? Where does the brake come from?

Visibility ≠ arrogance

Write the difference, for you, between making your value visible and 'boasting'.

→ Making my value visible isn't arrogance.

The thoughts that make you invisible

'I have nothing interesting to say', 'others do better', 'they'll judge me': these thoughts make you silence what you know and erase your wins.

Softening them lets you take your place.

Example

Sure 'it had all been said', Marc hesitated to post. His first useful post found its audience.

Invisibility journal

Note: the thought that silences you · a fairer version.

What I know

List 3 topics where you have real value to share.

→ I have value to share — someone needs it.

An image aligned with you

The best personal brand isn't a character: it's your real value, your strengths, your authenticity made legible. People connect with what rings true.

Your authenticity is your best brand.

Example

By stopping copying others' 'corporate' tone, Léa found a voice of her own — and a loyal audience.

My own brand

Write: my 3 strengths · my values · what makes me unique professionally.

The tone that fits me

Describe the way of communicating that fits you (not a character).

→ My authenticity is my best brand.

Building your visibility

Concretely: clarify your positioning (what you're associated with), tend to LinkedIn/CV coherently, share (content, speaking, helping others), and lean on your network to amplify.

Consistency and coherence beat one-off splashes.

Example

By posting regularly on her expertise, Sofia became 'the reference' on her topic in her network — and the offers came.

My positioning

Write in one sentence: 'I want to be known for...'

My visibility

Note: a LinkedIn/CV element to improve · a way to share what I know.

→ Clear positioning + consistency make my value visible.

Practical tips & advice

Tips & advice

- Define your positioning: what do you want to be associated with?
- Tend to LinkedIn and CV coherently with that positioning.
- Make your wins visible without overselling (facts speak).
- Share what you know: posts, speaking, helping others.
- Your authenticity is your best brand; consistency beats intensity.
- Lean on your network to amplify your visibility.

To fill in

My positioning

What I want to be associated with	The proof that backs it

My visibility

Action (LinkedIn, post, speaking)	When

PLAN

Your 4-week plan

Week 1 — Spot what holds me back from showing up.

Week 2 — Soften the thoughts that make me invisible.

Week 3 — Define an image aligned with me.

Week 4 — Build my visibility (positioning, sharing).

Your plan in 3 lines

- I want to be known for:
- What I'll share:
- The visibility element I tend to first:

TO CLOSE

Making your value visible, while staying yourself.

Making your value visible, while staying yourself.

This guide is a coaching and psychoeducation tool, not a substitute for therapy. If you are going through a hard time, please reach out to a professional or a crisis line in your country. © PerfectMatch · EvaTalk.