

Overcoming Sexual Performance Anxiety

Letting go of pressure and finding ease again

4 psychology approaches · tips · 18+ — by EvaTalk · for men

CONTENTS

Overcoming Sexual Performance Anxiety

1. Before you begin
2. The 4 approaches
3. Psychodynamic lens
4. CBT lens
5. Humanistic lens
6. Systemic lens
7. Tips & advice
8. Your workbook
9. Your 4-week plan

BEFORE YOU BEGIN

Letting go of pressure and finding ease again

The fear of 'not measuring up', of disappointing, of 'performance' creates an anxiety that, paradoxically, sabotages the very thing you dread. It's extremely common.

And above all: it's psychological — so it can be worked on. This guide helps you break the vicious circle and find an easeful sexuality again.

Your intention

The situation where the pressure to 'perform' blocks you most: _____

The 4 approaches

This guide works your topic through 4 complementary psychology lenses. Read, do the exercises, fill the workbook — at your own pace.

Psychodynamic — understand the root.

CBT — ease the negative thoughts.

Humanistic — reconcile with yourself.

Systemic — act on your environment.

Where the pressure comes from

Demands of masculinity ('a man must always...'), fear of judgment, self-esteem tied to performance: the pressure comes from learned models, not a reality you must live up to.

Understanding it is the start of releasing it.

Example

Sure he had to 'measure up' every time, Marc realized that demand came from images, not from his partner.

My pressure

Which demand ('I must...') weighs most on you in intimacy?

Where it comes from

Write: this pressure comes from... (models, comparisons, fear of judgment).

→ My pressure comes from learned models — not a real demand.

The vicious circle of anxiety

'What if I can't' → self-monitoring → fear creates the block → which feeds the fear. That's the core mechanism, and it can be broken.

Getting out of your head and back to sensation breaks the circle.

Example

The more Sami 'monitored', the more it blocked. By returning to sensation and the present moment, the pressure dropped.

My circle

Note: the anxious thought · what it triggers · how to return to sensation.

Leave the 'spectator'

Write: 'I return to my sensations and my partner, not to my thoughts.'

→ Fear creates the block — returning to sensation breaks the circle.

Leaving performance behind

Sex isn't an exam. Your worth as a man and partner isn't measured by a 'performance'. The aim: shared pleasure and connection, not passing a test.

Less pressure = more presence and pleasure.

Example

By aiming for closeness instead of 'performance', Léo paradoxically regained ease.

Beyond performance

Write what you'd like to experience in intimacy (beyond 'succeeding').

My worth

Write: 'My worth doesn't depend on my 'performances'.'

→ Sex isn't an exam — my worth doesn't depend on it.

Easing it concretely

Concretely: leave self-monitoring (return to sensation, to the moment), communicate with your partner (it defuses a lot), de-dramatize, breathe. And if anxiety persists, a sex therapist truly helps.

Naming your fear already halves it.

Example

By daring to talk to his partner, Yanis found she wasn't after 'a performance' — all the pressure dropped.

Communicate

What you'd like to be able to tell your partner about this pressure: _____

My calming

A way to return to calm and sensation (breathing, presence): _____

→ Communicating and returning to sensation — that's what eases it.

Practical tips & advice

Tips & advice

- Performance anxiety is very common — you're not alone.
- It's a vicious circle: fear creates the block; breaking the fear breaks the block.
- Leave self-monitoring ('spectator') and return to sensation.
- Sex isn't a performance to succeed at, but a pleasure to share.
- Talk with your partner: it defuses a lot.
- If anxiety persists, a sex therapist truly helps.

To fill in

My vicious circle

Anxious thought	How to return to sensation

Easing

To tell my partner	My return to calm

PLAN

Your 4-week plan

Week 1 — Understand where my pressure comes from.

Week 2 — Spot and break the vicious circle.

Week 3 — Leave performance (sensation, connection).

Week 4 — Communicate & ease.

Your plan in 3 lines

- The demand I release:
- How I return to sensation:
- What I tell my partner:

TO CLOSE

Sex isn't an exam — less pressure, more pleasure.

Sex isn't an exam — less pressure, more pleasure.

Adults only (18+). This guide is a coaching and psychoeducation tool for intimate wellbeing — not therapy, nor medical or sex-therapy advice. In case of pain, persistent difficulty or distress, consult a sex therapist or doctor. © PerfectMatch · EvaTalk.